DETAILED ACTION

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 103

1. The following is a quotation of 35 U.S.C. 103(a) which forms the basis for all obviousness rejections set forth in this Office action:

(a) A patent may not be obtained though the invention is not identically disclosed or described as set forth in section 102 of this title, if the differences between the subject matter sought to be patented and the prior art are such that the subject matter as a whole would have been obvious at the time the invention was made to a person having ordinary skill in the art to which said subject matter pertains. Patentability shall not be negated by the manner in which the invention was made.

2. The factual inquiries set forth in Graham v. John Deere Co., 383 U.S. 1, 148 USPQ 459 (1966), that are applied for establishing a background for determining obviousness under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) are summarized as follows:

1. Determining the scope and contents of the prior art.
2. Ascertaining the differences between the prior art and the claims at issue.
3. Resolving the level of ordinary skill in the pertinent art.
4. Considering objective evidence present in the application indicating obviousness or nonobviousness.

3. Claims 1,2 and 8-15 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 103(a) as being unpatentable over Watanabe et al. US 6,929,857.

4. This patent shows rubber compositions based on vulcanized rubber latex ingredients, see column 3 line 51 where the vulcanizing agents are suggested. The claimed rubber latex is discussed at column 4 lines 10+. The filler ingredient is suggested at column 3 line 52 and column 6 lines 35+. The aqueous ammonia component is suggested at column 4 lines 5-6 and exemplified at column 9 line 64 and column 10 line 24. These examples are considered to be the closest teaching with respect to the claimed invention. Here the rubber latex is shown in combination with the aqueous ammonia. The incorporation of the filler is not exemplified in these examples.

Art Unit: 1713

The fillers are suggested in the disclosure of this patent as referenced supra. It would be obvious to incorporate the fillers suggested in the disclosure in these examples given that the fillers are suggested in the disclosure and one of ordinary skill would have a reasonable expectation of the result.

5. It is acknowledged that the claims recite a “masking compound.” The art is silent as to this use of the compound. This is not considered a patentable distinction.

Moreover, “masking compound” is not seen to significantly limit the claimed compound.

This is a use limitation in the preamble. It has no significant structure limitations. Case law has well established that a recitation of the intended use of the claimed invention must result in a structural difference between the claimed invention and the prior art in order to patentably distinguish the claimed invention from the prior art. If the prior art structure is capable of performing the intended use, then it meets the claim. The compounds of the art are clearly “capable” of functioning as a masking compound. As such, this limitation is anticipated.

6. Further, a preamble is generally not accorded any patentable weight where it merely recites the purpose of a process or the intended use of a structure, and where the body of the claim does not depend on the preamble for completeness but, instead, the process steps or structural limitations are able to stand alone. See In re Hirao, 535 F.2d 67, 190 USPQ 15 (CCPA 1976) and Kropa v. Robie, 187 F.2d 150, 152, 88 USPQ 478, 481 (CCPA 1951).
